Feedly:-
- Feedly is a news aggregator and RSS feed reader
- It organizes news from multiple sources.
- Users can subscribe to sources, categorize them into topics, and access new content in a single feed
- To access content from Feedly, we must sign up for a developer account and meet certain login criteria.

Getting Started

If you are a Feedly customer, interested in integrating your Feedly feeds, boards, and priorities with another business applications, please signup for an Feedly Enterprise API demo.

If you are building a productivity application and integrating with Feedly to enable your customers access their Feedly content, we require a Feedly Pro license for each customer. This is what we are doing with Buffer, IFTTT, Zapier, etc. You can start building your application against the Feedly API Sandbox and contact us when you are ready to go production.

If you are building an innovative consumer application using Feedly (innovative because of a new platform or UI), we will grant you a license and help you distribute your solution. The key here is around innovation. You can start building your application against the Feedly API Sandbox and contact us when you are ready to go production.

If you are a hobbyist playing around with the Feedly API in a non-commercial context and have a Feedly Pro plan, you can use the Feedly developer token to access your feeds and boards.
